Residential Addition for a Seattle Couple
Seattle, Washington

The addition looks over a lush backyard garden

This Craftsman Addition evolved from a Seattle couple's request for more storage and closet space and an expanded bathroom.

A recently remodeled kitchen served as an effective starting point for design intent. The addition was seen to provide period detailing that was lacking from the original house.

The master bedroom is now a third again larger than the original and now has ample closet space. A window nook captures both sunlight and view into their lush backyard.

The enlarged bath is now vintage 1940's with glassblock and rich marble accents.
